By the very nature of the activity, gymnastics carries a risk of physical injury. No matter how careful the gymnast and the coaches are, no matter how many spotters are used, no matter what height is used or what landing surface exists, the risk cannot be eliminated. Reduced, yes, but not eliminated. The risk of injury includes minor injuries such as bruises and more serious injuries such as broken bones, dislocations and muscle pulls. The risk also includes paralysis or even death from landings on back, neck or head. The following is a list of any physical impairment or conditions that Columbia Gymnastics should be aware of, and I confirm the above person is in good health. I give permission for Columbia Gymnastics staff to administer first aid and call a doctor in case of an emergency.
